COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN OFFICER'S OFFICE

Anyone hunting pheasants on or after Oct. 3, must have a special stamp in their possession. These are available for $1.00 at the Town Office.

We have communicated with the railroad relative to automatic signals on the so-called Ferry Road crossing in West Bethel. It is the intent of the selectmen to lay the groundwork this fall for the necessary articles to be inserted in the warrant of the next annual town meeting. As yet, we do not know if the railroad will participate in the cost of the signals or who must pay for the maintenance of them. The last estimate we had was approximately $12,000 installation cost and $700 per year for maintenance. We must also obtain a right of way from the railroad to officially connect the old Rte. 2 to the Ferry Road crossing. The road that is presently used was never accepted by the town.

Sewer users will be billed in October for one quarter's use and again in January for 1973. Next year they will be billed each quarter.

LABELS FOR EDUCATION

The elementary schools of M. S. A. D. 44 will be starting a special collection drive aimed at obtaining needed audio-visual equipment. The program, "Labels for Education" is sponsored by the Campbell Soup Company and offered only to elementary schools, both public and private.

Between now and Dec. 8, it is hoped to get enough Campbell Soup labels to get tape recorders, phonographs, filmstrip and slide projectors selected by the individual school principals.

All elementary schools in the District will be participating. Send the labels to the school of your choice. Labels brought to Woodstock will be used for that school only. Labels sent to Locke Mills School will be used for Locke Mills school only. The same will be done at Andover, Crescent Park (including Newry) and Elsie Bibebe.

Arrangements are being made for central location collection points in each town and at Telstar.

Any Campbell soup can label (regardless of size, 50 oz. size or Chunky soup) counts in the drive. More than 70 audio-visual equipment items are being offered. Each

TELSTAR IS 23-6 VICTOR OVER MESSALONSKEE HIGH

Paul Farrar scored two touchdowns, one on a 61-yard jaunt, to lead Telstar's Rebels to a 23-6 victory over host Messalonskee High in Mountain Valley Conference football action Saturday afternoon.

Messalonskee picked up its only score in the opening period on a 35-yard quarterback keeper by Mike Dorval. The rush for the extra points failed.

Telstar talked the equalizer in the same session with quarterback Pete Blake covering the final 36 yards. A broken play resulted in a two-point conversion and put the Rebels in front 8-6.

Telstar marched 60 yards for its second touchdown before the half ended with Farrar carrying in from the three and placekicking the extra point.

After a scoreless third quarter the Rebels wrapped up the victory with a pair of six-pointers in the final chapter. Doug Brooks highlighted the 60-yard march with a 15-yard sortie and banged over for the score from the one. Farrar placekicked the conversion to up the count to 22-6.

Later in the period Farrar broke into the clear and sped 61 yards for the final tally of the contest. The kick for the extra point was wide of the mark.

Telstar will entertain the Jay High Tigers Saturday afternoon at 1:30.

FORMAT OF ALUMNI DAY AT GOULD TO DIFFER FROM PAST YEARS

A Lumberman's Outdoor Breakfast, Athletic events and an evening Banquet will highlight Gould Academy's 1973 Alumni Day activities Saturday, Sept. 29.

"Without disrupting the regular Alumni Day traditions, we will attempt, this year, to give the Alumni and their families a more complete day of activities at the Academy," Anderson said.

According to Anderson, the newly created Nathan Tuckerman True Award for outstanding citizenship and the Alumnus/Alumna of the Year Award will be given for the first time on Sept. 29.

Other features planned for the day will be a glass blowing demonstration by students and an opportunity for Alumni to try the rope course which is part of the Academy's Environmental Survival Program.

Immediately preceding the opening of the meeting Mrs. Patricia Hudson was sworn in as a board member from Bethel. She was appointed by the Bethel board of selectmen to replace Dan Manson. Mrs. Hudson will serve until the annual election in March.

The board voted to grant permission to Gideons International to place New Testaments in the fifth grades of the District, as has been customary for several years.

Also that the Teachers Association had made the following appointments to the Teacher Administration Liaison Committee: Margaret Davis, Helen Berry, Mabel Kennett, Paul Vincent, Caroline Gould, Charles Johnson, and Ralph Niemi.

Two members of the Education Development Committee from the adult communities of S. A. D. 44, are to be jointly appointed by the board of directors and the Association. Any persons desiring to be considered are asked to notify the Office of the Superintendent of Schools as soon as possible.

The board appointed Dr. John Young of Bethel to serve as school physician for the 1973-74 school year.

Barry Bodwell, teacher of English and math at Telstar, was named captain basketball coach for the 1973-74 school year.

After considerable discussion and deliberation, the board approved the composition of, and charge to an Ad Hoc Committee for Educational Planning. It was a vote of the board that it is their intent to adopt and establish such a committee at the meeting of Oct. 1.

The Ad Hoc Committee will be composed of a five member to be appointed by the Telstar Educators Association who may or may not be a member of the Educational Development Committee under Article 10 of the Agreement between the Telstar Educators Association of M. 9th Annual Soap Box Derby Soap Box racing time comes again to West Paris on Sept. 23. The youngsters of this area take their grubby powered machines to the top of Derby Hill and compete against each other for trophies and the prestige of winning.

If you have a youngster who would like to join in the racing game, all he has to do is pick up an application blank. They are available from the following people and businesses: David Rugg, Leon Baker, Roger Hickey, Ruth Dickinson, Betty McAlister and Fern Bran, also West Paris 1st Co. All these people are listed in the phone book under the listed Tel. and Tel. Listings.

Rules for construction of your soap box racer are on the back of the application blanks. They are simple and are entered primarily for safety of the driver.

The timing of numbers is done by Fern Bran, Tel. 654-2150.

In event of rain on the 23rd, the race will be moved up one week to the 30th. The competition will start at 5 p. m.

Prior to race time, the classification committee will be classifying the racers into three classes. They are: Beginner, Intermediate, and Veteran. The winner of a competitor gets the better chance to have for a faster classification. Late racers will be taking their chances.

The trophies are donated by Bob Harte, owner of the Oxford Plains Speedway.

The derby track is open any time for racing teams to try out their cars and for practice. This practice is very important. Drivers with little experience tend to wreck a little and this wrecking is some times costly in a class race.

There will be the annual Powder Puff Derby for the girls and also the complete race which always proves to be fun for everyone, including the spectators.

NORTHWEST BETHEL

Mrs. Louise B. Chapman, Corres. — Now that the long lazy days of summer are being replaced by shorter ones, we in our own ways, are like our animal friends in preparing for winter. Some of us are stocking our pantries with home preserves, canned garden vegetables, and home-made pickles, some of us are splitting wood and filling sheds with a winter's supply of wood fuel. Some of us will rely on supermarkets and all furnaces for the duration of the winter months. Whichever it might be preparations are being made for that first snowfall of the winter season. But for now fall is here, it is a colorful time, a time for enjoying what nature has to offer. You don't have to go very far to get the full impact of fall's beauty, just look out your window! The smells of fall are as refreshing and distinctive as its colors. The air is fresh and clean, with the smell of apples in the orchards conjuring up visions of apple pie and cheese, and cider and doughnuts. The sounds of fall are quiet sounds. The summer vacationers are gone, leaving the beaches and camping areas deserted. Neighborhoods are quiet, with the children in school, and pets quietly awaiting their return. As summer changes to autumn, so do the sights, sounds and smells, as they do in every seasonal change.

FARMERS ADVISED TO PLAN NOW FOR NEXT YEAR

Even though farmers haven't finished harvesting and marketing this year's crops in Oxford County, it's not too soon for them to begin planning how to sell the things they'll raise next season, a farm official points out.

"This is especially true if producers want to consider new marketing methods not locally available and discuss them with those in the trade with whom they normally deal," says Beverly Dean, Oxford County Executive Director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

There are several forward marketing methods by which farmers can fix their per unit prices for 1974 crops, either now or at a later date when the market looks best to them, the county executive director said.

Market for food and fiber at home and abroad is signaling the need for full production, she pointed out. Program changes already announced for 1974 will permit use of all land for crop production.

"Even though there is strong demand and good farm prices, producers will want to look into the best ways to market their crops now that the government is no longer involved in holding huge Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) stocks of grain," she said. "This includes re-evaluating the market—as many are already doing—and picking both the price and the method of locking in prices that works best for them and guarantees a fair return on the land, labor, capital, and management skills that they invest in crops and livestock each year."

Government loans on commodities will continue to be available to farmers who need them for financing, Mrs. Dean pointed out. However, in most other ways the government's influence on production and marketing of agricultural commodities has been eliminated for the first time in years.

"This means more attention to marketing by farmers, and both the trade and government are attempting to provide producers with information on ways to lock in profits through forward pricing," the county executive said.

She pointed out that the county ASCS office has available reprints of several magazine articles telling about marketing methods being used by producers in various parts of the country. These are offered as background information so that farmers who are interested in different marketing techniques can see what is being done elsewhere, the county executive director added.

GREENWOOD CITY

— Mrs. Collette Morgan, Corres. —
Now on our countryside, Nature paints her canvas with familiar scenes of the harvest. In September

All the flowers of the garden
Are as bright as in July,
And September laughs at summer
As her golden days pass by.
Even roses lend their fragrance
To September's sweet bouquet,
And gay marigolds and dahlias
Mark her dancing gypsy way.
Yellow pumpkins, tapered carrots,
Set the roadside stands aflame;
Fruits of harvest add their merit
To September's lovely name.
This is nature's grand convention
This her final glorious fling!
Her last bid for full attention,
Her last chance to bloom and sing.
Here is something to remember
When youth's summer turns to fruit....
Life gives each its warm September
As a full rich substitute.
Myra P. Ellis

In my garden this week I have separated roots and bulbs for very soon there will be frosty asters. Autumn's call is loud and stirring. Time is fleeting and the intriguing hues of scarlet will soon mingle with the brown and gold.

Twice this week I have climbed to the birches on Noyes Mountain. Tall and beautiful they stood against the sky; swaying to a gentle rhythm as breezes passed through.

I sat and listened to the falling of the acorns from a big oak near by. The birches were like giant candles glowing brightly straight and slim as they thrust their heads to the clouds.

A few bird calls came trembling on a tiny thread from out the hemlocks at the right. Here I gathered tiny cones to take home to use later.

The earth was clean and fragrant. A cricket from somewhere out in the distance fiddled his merry tune accompanied by the tinkling of water laughing among the ferns. Here in May I heard the songs of the mating birds and saw flowers by the way. In mid-summer I found shade here during a long afternoon. Now those days are no more and the sun has swung to the south west in the blue sky on the open horizon just beyond. Not only with eye; but the mind stretches to see this horizon through each season and realizes the span of beauty around, the same but ever new.

As I approached home the view was different but four big elms had been removed from in back of the house a few days before.

"For years that measure centuries these elms have grown beside the river and heard the passing waters laugh."

As to the sea they flowed forever. And when the toll of day was done and darkness fell among the trees, the stars were clustered in the tops.

"As jewels in a crown of leaves." So passes more monarchs of the ages. A fat little, jolly young cloudlet went skipping across the sky. I wondered if his pockets were bulging with dew-drops. But, no, for later slowly and silently the moon walked the crisp breezeless night among the stars.

There were lingering shadows above the garden and the ducks disputed off shore, gliding peacefully along.

At four o'clock the next morning the orange-yellow moon in the west came peeping through my bedroom window. It was so lovely that I got up to go to the kitchen to view it across the pond. In a moment, at one place in the water it seemed to boil in diamonds then a pointed triangle moved in my direction through a spread of dark velvet blanket. Drawing this veil of diamonds brilliant with sparkles, shoreward; it disappeared in a bank of ferns. One can never imagine gems in a setting so rare unless he has seen them as I did; made by three common things... moon-glow, water, er, and a muskrat. It was truly a scene of real enchantment. Autumn had dropped her veil of beauty at my window and I was glad that I had come to see.

The new bridge across the Sanborn River on the Patch Mountain Road is being built.

David Holt, U. M. O., was at home for the week end. He had as guests his roommate and another friend, Doris Hayes, local, and Lettie Brooks, West Paris, have visited with Colista Morgan this week.

Ann Holt visited her friend, Nancy Hutton, Waterville, on the week end.

Mrs. Walter Biron, West Peru, is visiting Mrs. Frank Curtis for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Mundt, Bethel, were callers Sunday, at Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Morgan's.

Dorothy Curtis spent a few days last week with Audrey Biron in West Peru.

Gladys Kilgore, Corres.

Thirty-one of the Senior Citizens went to Two Lights in Portland Wednesday. We all had dinner at the Cascades in Saco. A most enjoyable time was had by all. Our next meeting will be Oct. 10 at the North Waterford Vestry.

Mrs. Vesta Nelson is working for a few days in the restaurant at Lynchville.

Mrs. Elizabeth Barker and her sister, Mrs. Ezra Stevens have closed their camp on Lake Virginia and gone to their homes in Washington and Boston, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Doughty attended the wedding of her niece, Diane Nurni, Saturday. The reception was held at Pleasant Mountain Inn.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Millett and Vesta Nelson went to the Globe shopping Sunday.

Fuel Conservation Starts In The Home

The heating and cooling of buildings requires about one sixth of the total energy expended in the United States. Much of this energy is wasted because buildings are so poorly insulated that heat is lost in winter and air conditioning equipment runs overtime in summer. This applies to most older homes and commercial buildings, and surprisingly, occurs in many new structures as well, the researchers find.

Related energy may cost the nation as much as two billion dollars annually.

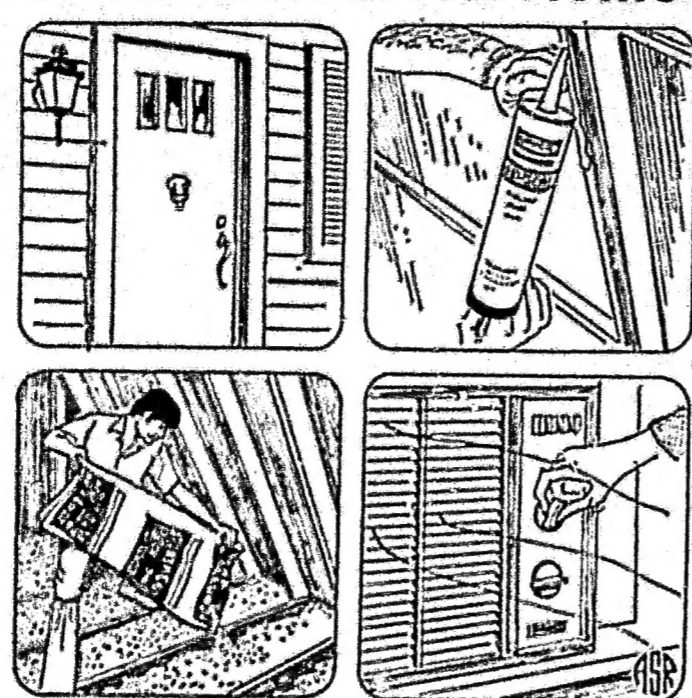

Insulation specialists at the Construction Products Division of W.R. Grace & Co., Cambridge, Massachusetts — one of the nation's largest producers of insulating materials — point out that such things as better home insulation, storm windows and more efficient heating and cooling units can greatly reduce fuel costs. Savings can amount to over $100 a year in the average size home.

It is estimated 60% of homes 15 years old or older have no insulation at all and nearly all homes are inadequately insulated by today's standards.

As with almost everything else, fuel costs for the consumer have been rising and are expected to continue in the future. Fuel economists predict that the price for gas, electricity and heating oil will increase at an annual average rate of about eight per cent. At this rate, fuel prices will double in ten years.

Here are some recommendations from the W.R. Grace specialists on how consumers can lower fuel and air conditioning costs and at the same time do their bit to cut down on air pollution.

- Use weather stripping, wherever necessary.
- Make sure your house is Here are four ways the experts say homeowners can cut fuel bills efficiently. 1. Use weather stripping wherever necessary. 2. Make sure your house is well caulked around windows, doors, etc.—anywhere "air leakage" can occur. 3. Insulate the attic floor. This can save up to $100 in yearly fuel bills. 4. Run air conditioners at a comfortable level — don't "over-cool", well caulked. (Heat loss from "air leakage" can easily account for 15-20% of a family's heating bill.)

• Check insulation. Attics should have a six inch layer of good insulation, and walls three and one-half inches. Floors located over "crawl spaces" also need three and one-half inches.

Most homeowners can easily add insulation to attic floors. Zonolite® vermiculite is one type of granular insulation that readily pours right over existing insulation. It fills in any gaps.

Insulation of sidewalls usually requires the services of a professional. Proper insulation can cut atle heat loss as much as 90%.

• If you live in a cold climate, installing storm windows can cut window heat loss in half. They also eliminate cold "drafts" and condensation on windows.

• Run air conditioners only at a comfortable level — don't "over-cool". Insulation here can help, too, by keeping warm air out. The efficiency of the air conditioning equipment increases and operating costs go down.

The researchers say solar energy is perhaps 25 years in the future. In the meantime, they suggest we should do what we can to conserve conventional energy... and, in the process, save some money.
